

Report them to the FTC

The scammers running MyChargeBack have no feelings or emotions. I noticed that they had responded to most of the complaints I have posted above. At first, I thought that at least these people acknowledge the complaints people post about them. However, I found that most of the responses were automated responses. They write one sentence that acknowledges the nature of the complaint and then they start spewing the same automated responses they have posted everywhere else.

The people at MyChargeBack are heartless scammers. If they can resort to scamming an army veteran who risked his life to defend this country, they can stoop to any level possible to make a few extra bucks. I don't think this company has any ethics or morals.

We should recommend this company to the Federal Trade Commission. Maybe that will teach these people a lesson. After all, that's all we can do at the moment. There were a ton of complaints against MyChargeBack, however, I couldn't post them here. Posting all of them here meant that I would need to write an entire book because there are too many victims of this scam.

MyChargeBack Review

This dangerous organization scammed my dad, who is an army veteran and risked his life for
